Just a year ago today, the last spell of real nasty weather, which was noted during the spring, set in. Temperatures dropped below freezing on three successive nights, and snow fell on three successive days. Weather conditions improved rapidly after that, however, and by April 24 the temperature was up in the 80's.

School Board To Confer With Expert On Method To Be Used To Secure Payment

Probabilities of an attempt by the New Castle school board to collect at least part of the delinquent per capita taxes were seen Wednesday night when the board voted to have Don Wilkinson, a collection expert, come to New Castle for a conference with the board.

There is outstanding upon the books of the board about $300,000 in the $5 per capita taxes. Considerable of this, the board feels can be collected. Other boards have taken steps to collect such a tax and have been getting about 30 per cent.

Mr. Wilkinson is presently engaged in Ellwood City in the collection of delinquent per capita taxes and will come to New Castle for the conference within a short time.

Police Officer's Hearing Starts

Council Hears Testimony In Action Of Dismissal In Shepp's Case

NO DECISION IS AS YET REACHED

Hearing of charges against Charles A. Shepp, Jr., dismissed by Mayor Charles B. Mayne as a member of the city police force, started in city hall this morning.

After the taking of testimony Mayor Mayne surrendered the chair to Finance Director James L. Fink and offered a motion that his recommendation of dismissal be approved.

After a conference between councilmen, D. O. Davies offered another motion which resulted in council recessing until this afternoon which would give solons a chance to deliberate on testimony taken so far, they stated.

The testimony today, as brought out by Mayor Mayne, who acted as interrogator for the city, centered around asserted neglect of duty in a seventh ward restaurant shortly after Easter.

The charges which the mayor filed against Shepp were:

Conduct unbecoming an officer.

Engaging in politics prior to and following appointment as a policeman.

The mayor also charged that "in our judgment he was illegally placed on the police force".

Asks Bill of Particulars

Shepp was represented by former District Attorney John S. Powers who requested council for a bill of particulars concerning the charges. His request was filed.

Mayor Mayne then addressed council, stating that Officer Shepp and several other persons visited the police chief and he, March 26, relative to an alleged occurrence in Etensohn's restaurant early March 25.

Not To Ballot On County Chairman

County Elections Board Drops County Chairman From Democratic Ballot

LONG CONTROVERSY APPEARS ENDED

Final disposition of the row in the Democratic party was had today when the county commissioners acting as a board of elections passed a resolution dropping the position of county chairman of the Democratic party from the primary ballots.

The action ends the dispute which has raged since December, 1939, which has been in court a number of times and which drew the attention of the state party officers.

The resolution of the county commissioners, a two to one vote, with J. F. Travers casting the negative vote, came after a delegation of Democrats waited upon the commissioners Wednesday afternoon, asking that the matter be appealed to the supreme court. The delegation offered to underwrite the expenses of the appeal.

The position of the two Republican commissioners is that the matter has been gone into thoroughly in court, that the matter has been decided by the court, and that further action is unnecessary.

International News Service Staff Correspondent

STOCKHOLM, April 11.—Dispersal of a small detachment of German mechanized troops which had been sent out to capture King Haakon "at any cost" was revealed today as Norway mobilized another division after ousting Nazi invaders from a number of strategic points.

Norwegian troops were ordered to give "full military cooperation" with British forces.

Disclosure of the attempt to capture King Haakon was made by a wounded German who was made prisoner by the Norwegians. He said he belonged to a motorized unit of 23 men and one officer which had been ordered "at any cost" to capture the Norwegian monarch and as many of his governmental heads as possible, and bring them to Oslo

The detachment was commanded by the aircraft attache of the German legation at Oslo. Enroute to attempt to take the king, Premier Nycaardsvold and any other government officials they could at Elverun, the Germans were met by a Norse force of regular soldiers, military workers, members of a rifle club and cadets from a military school only three miles from the city. State Macing Trial Nearing End

Arguments Are Now Being Made

Plea For Acquittal Of Eight Defendants Made By Their Attorneys

CLAIMS PARTY HAS RIGHT TO COLLECT

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, April 11—The defense opened its final summation to the jury in the so-called macing trial of Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence and seven other party officials today with a plea for acquittal of all eight.

Thomas D. Caldwell, first of four Republican defense attorneys to address the all-Republican jury, made the initial address. He spoke in behalf of Clyde H. Smith, finance chairman of the Dauphin county Democratic committee, and a defendant.

References to the conflict abroad, the Bible and to Democratic principles punctuated Caldwell's address. Unlike many European nations, the attorney told the jury, this nation operates under the democratic form of government, based on the party system.

Claims Nothing Wrong

In the Bible, he asserted, are to be found accounts of how people of the Biblical era contributed money to political groups.

"There is nothing wrong in the collection of contributions from persons who hold public office," said Caldwell. "There is nothing wrong in fixed percentages.

"It was the fair thing to have a uniform yardstick by which contributions could be made. Anything else would be discrimination."

The main point to be considered, he said, was whether these contributions "were exacted by force or coercion".

All of the witnesses who testified they had been coerced, pointed out Caldwell, were holdover Republican state employes who changed their registration to Democratic.

"None of these claimed he did that under coercion, did they?" shouted Caldwell.

"Isn't it a remarkable thing that not one of the 12 to 15 witnesses who testified they were threatened complained to the head of his department or resigned?

Stayed On Jobs

"They continued on their jobs, they got raises and in 1939 they complained they were treated unjustly. There's such a thing as sportsmanship in politics.

"This matter of soliciting funds on Capitol Hill is nothing new. It is a legitimate, justified procedure.

"When the Democrats came into power they had the same right to ask the beneficiaries of their party to contribute to its upkeep."

Caldwell spoke for 40 minutes and was followed by Paul Kunkle, who pleaded for Robert M. Fager, Dauphin county Democratic chairman.

Kunkel defined "assessment", which loomed large in the three-weeks-old trial, as an "estimate" of the amount the Democratic party hoped to obtain from its adherents.

"A political party has the right to collect money," the white-haired attorney emphasized.

Fager's interpretation of "assessment", added Kunkel, "was what he told state employes who came in to pay a contribution: 'Don't worry, pay what you can.'"

"That's the crux of the situation," continued the attorney. "He gave it a good meaning and he acted it."

NAZIS CLAIM NORWAY FIRMLY IN GRIP AFTER 48 HOURS OF FIGHTING

no state of war exists between Norway and the Reich, inasmuch as Norway has not notified Germany to that effect.

German officials jeered at Allied reports that Trondheim, Bergen and other cities have been recaptured, and that Oslo was threatened with shelling by British warships. The reports were termed "a systematic campaign of lies intended to stiffen the backs of the Norwegians and cover up annihilating political and military blunders and defeats."

It was emphatically denied that the Reich has sent a note to Sweden demanding free passage for German troops.

Claim British Efforts Halted

German authorities proudly claimed that all efforts of the Allied fleets to rescue Norway from German troops so far have failed.

In addition, they claimed, the Anglo-French naval forces have received a severe battering from German air force bombers even before any fighting between Allied and German forces has been launched on the Scandinavian mainland.

The British and French navies, according to the Germans, apparently split into three units for a triple dash toward the Norwegian coast with the aim of landing expeditionary forces at one or more points and compelling the Germans to fight it out on Norwegian soil.

What hopes the Allies may have of ousting the German forces from their fortified positions are not known in Berlin, but German authorities said they believed the Allies are inclined to discredit the German assertion that the Norwegian coast already has been transformed into an invincible defense position.

Any British force that attempts to land along the Norwegian shores, these quarters said, risks the grave danger of experiencing a "second Gallipoli."

Many Counter Claims

With claims and counter-claims put forward by both sides, the true situation will probably not be clear until after the war, but it appeared certain today that both the Allies and Germans have sustained heavy blows and that both probably will claim victory.

But above all else, Berlin quarters emphasized, the fact remains that unless the Allies are able to seize Norway they will have fought "in vain." The German navy, it was pointed out, is the smallest unit of the German war machine. Thus whatever losses it may suffer in the major naval action still progressing are not causing undue concern in Berlin.

In any event, it was contended, the final decision with the Allies will be sought elsewhere by Germany, but German sources said the point at present most interesting to Norway, Denmark and Europe's neutral nations is this:

Are the Anglo-French forces capable of carrying out the political promises of the Allies?

tirely surrounding the Scandinavian peninsula and extending east to include the Soviet ports of Murmansk and Archangel.

That action, close scrutiny revealed, may also have been aimed at Berlin, as well as being designed to keep American ships out of the war zone. No United States vessel now can carry goods across the Atlantic to Russia—the Reich's economic ally—for possible transshipment to Germany. Coming at a time when a British blockade threatens to close Russia's Pacific ports to war supplies which may be destined ultimately for the Reich, the inclusion of Russian ports in the new zone appeared significant.

Short Of War

The president's reference to "measures short of war"—under which last night's orders might be included—occurred in a speech Mr. Roosevelt made to congress on January 4, 1939. He said:

"Words may be futile, but war is not the only means of commanding a decent respect for the opinions of mankind. There are many methods short of war, but stronger and more effective than mere words of bringing home to aggressor governments the aggregate sentiments of our own people:

Two executive orders—based on authority given the president under the "trading with the enemy act of 1917," were issued by Mr. Roosevelt:

1. All payments to Danes and Norwegians of balances held by them in the United States was forbidden, except under licenses to be issued in exceptional cases by the secretary of the treasury.

2. Secretary of treasury Morgenthau was ordered to make a complete inventory of all property—both governmental and private—owned by Danes or Norwegians in this country.

The orders were issued after extended conferences among state department and treasury officials and envoys of the two Scandinavian countries over which Germany has asserted control.

BRITAIN SCORES REPEATEDLY IN NAVAL CLASHES

Stockholm assertions claiming Allied recapture of Bergen and Trondheim were erroneous.

Amid cheers in the house of commons, Churchill said all German shipping in the Skagerrak and Kattegat—seaways between the Reich and Norway and Sweden—will be sunk. He had ample support for this statement in the adventure of the British fleet which last night penetrated to the shores of Sweden.

Coup Long Planned

Germany's coup in Norway and Denmark was "long planned," said Churchill, "and it might have come as easily in the Netherlands.

"What an example this is to other neutrals," the British admiralty chief said.

Churchill added the destroyers Glowworm and Gurkha to the list of British losses, and said the 38,000-ton Rodney was hit by a bomb, but its decks resisted the impact. The destroyer Zulu sank a U-boat, he added.

More Than 30 Ships Lost

In the vast sea conflict, more than 30 ships have been lost between the foes. Germany reported the passenger liner Bremen safe in a home port, after Amsterdam rumored her sunk.

While the vast conflict raged in the sea, both France and Germany said there were no particularly important events to report on the Western front.

Norwegian troops reportedly reoccupied Hamar, north of Oslo. Germany, however, said "German positions in Norway were extended and consolidated according to plan."

WESTERN FRONT MAY SEE ACTION

ures were taken in the Moselle region near Holland and opposite the Zuiderzee.

Inclement weather today minimized action along the entire front.

All radios in northern France were silenced early today as the result of a flight of German observation planes over France.

The German planes were intercepted by French pursuit craft and a hot "dog fight" took place, resulting in two Nazi planes being shot to earth. There were no French losses.

This morning's official communique reported:

"It was a calm night on the Lorraine-Alsace front.

"Two enemy reconnaissance airplanes were brought down early this morning by our pursuit planes."

It is the general feeling in Paris that the real war at last has begun, and that it is going to spread rapidly.

The reaction has been one of cheerfulness.

Party groups of the chamber of deputies met this morning and agreed not to interpellate the government at this afternoon's session. Instead, Premier Paul Reynaud will speak, giving a resume of the battle news, following which the chamber will adjourn.

Reynaud this morning received American Ambassador William C. Bullitt, who late last night returned to France after a lengthy visit to the United States.

The premier also received Turkish Ambassador Erkin, French Minister to Sofia Blondel and M. Naggiar, French ambassador to Russia.

During the day War Minister Eduard Daladier also conferred with General Weygand.

GERMAN INVADERS ARE DRIVEN OUT OF SEVERAL KEYPOINTS

announced that the commander of Norwegian forces in the north had been authorized to mobilize the sixth division and to contact Great Britain's forces "at the earliest possible moment" for joint action against the Nazis.

Surprise Move

Norwegian counter-action along the Narvik railroad was a surprise move, Hambro said, the Germans being thrown back before they could fire a shot. As a result, he said, German troops in the north now are isolated and cut off from all communications with headquarters except by air.

The first German successes at Narvik were achieved because of an apparent misunderstanding, Hambro disclosed.

Major Vikdun Quisling, named by the Nazis as head of a Norwegian puppet government sent instructions to Colonel Sundlo, Norwegian commander at Narvik to, co-operate with the Germans.

Sundlo complied, but a short while later the Norwegian high command supplanted Sundlo with Major Omdahl and ordered the latter to halt the Germans. Omdahl went into action immediately, taking the Germans by surprise. Sundlo was arrested.

A new Norwegian defense line now has been established near the Djupvik station on the Narvik railway, where Omdahl and his troops await reinforcements.

An attempted German attack on Elverum, latest seat of the Norwegian government, was repulsed, according to Hambro. Norwegian troops burned bridges behind the German invaders from Hamar southward, effectively cutting their communications.

Meanwhile, numerous Norwegian volunteers asked permission to serve in Norway. Similar appeals have been received from a number of Americans. The Norwegian government is welcoming all aid.

Recapture of Hamar

Hamar, north of Oslo, was the city to which the Norwegian government first fled from Oslo. Later the ministers took refuge at Elverum when German troops captured Hamar.

Details of the recapture of Hamar were not immediately available, but it was clear that loss of the city marked another of the severe blows sustained by the German invaders in the past 24 hours.

Meanwhile, fearing that its neutrality may be short-lived, Sweden completed preparations for any eventuality.

Reservists flocked to the colors as Swedish government officials reiterated:

"Sweden is determined to defend its independence and integrity."

In Norway King Haakon, who formally refused German demands that he accept the puppet government headed by pro-Nazi Major Vidkun Quisling, announced in a proclamation that Norway would fight on alongside the Anglo-French allies.

At the same time C. J. Hambro, president of the Norwegian parliament, reaffirmed Norway's determination to resist.

B. AND O. FISH FRY AT LEGION SUCCESS

Most successful in every way, was the annual fish fry held Wednesday evening in the American Legion Home, given by the B. and O. Veterans and Auxiliary, jointly. The occasion attracted guests numbering upwards of a hundred, and at 6:30 o'clock, the piping hot menu, prepared and served by the men, was partaken of.

The tables were nicely arranged for the feast, which tops all other occasions of this nature. In addition to the regular membership, of both groups, the assemblage was honored in having general foreman, F. M. Galloway, who recently moved here from St. Louis, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Garrigus, he being car shop foreman, and former resident of Youngstown who now makes their home in this city.

Avenues of diversion were later found in contests of a wide variety, including cards, with play lasting until a late hour.

The committee responsible for the evenings success included R. H. Walker, chairman, Roy Erwin, J. S. Thompson Joe Paluzak, Ed. Scanlon, J. E. Morrissey, George Wyman, E. Jorner and Fred Gibson.

The next gathering will be in the nature of a tureen dinner on May 8 in the American Legion Home.

A novel "get acquainted" period will launch the informal program, with a host of the church members, headed by Arthur Minnick and Howard Douglas on the reception committee, greeting guests at the door.

The serving will take place promptly at 6:30 o'clock in the dining room and W. C. Bryan is general chairman in charge. He has appointed on other committees, Cecil Potter for entertainment; Allan Cartwright for decorations and R. J. Benson, reservation chairman.

Response for reservations has been coming in steadily, and a record attendance is anticipated.

Katharyne A. Melvin Bride Of Dr. C. A. Bogue In Church

Attired in a full skirted, toe length mist gown of white lace and net made entrain, off-set with Sweetheart neckline and puffed sleeves and a finger-tip length veil cascading in three layers from clusters of orange blossoms encircling her head, Miss Katharyne Ann Melvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Melvin, of 219 Clenmore Boulevard was a charming bride for her marriage Wednesday afternoon, to Dr. Charles A. Bogue, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Bogue of 129 Ohio avenue, Warren, Ohio. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and valley lilies, and her only jewelry was a yellow gold necklace of six large pearls, in pendant effect, the gift of the groom.

The vows were pronounced at 4:30 o'clock, in the First Presbyterian church, with Dr. J. J. McIlvaine, pastor, officiating, in the presence of a throng of guests, filling the church. The single ring service was used.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, proceded to the altar to strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March, played by Miss Mabel Zehner, organist. The latter also contributed a fifteen minute program of appropriate nuptial selections before the ceremony, and she resounded softly, strains of the bride's favorite numbers, throughout the service.

As matron of honor, Mrs. Paul Zimmerman of Youngstown, O., close friend of the bride, wore a blue net creation, toe length, made with full skirt, and trimmed in dainty shell pink bows which edged the skirt and decorated the waist. A novel hat, her own creation, of grosgrain ribbon made perky with a flounce of matching net, reaching to the hairline, adorned her head. She carried a Colonial arm bouquet, with blue flowers predominating in the center of a circle of pink blooms. Miss Edith Cleaveland as bridesmaid, made her appearance in pink net, made identical to that of the matron of honor. Her hat, which was also a duplicate of Mrs. Zimmerman's, carried out the pink theme, trimmed in blue. Dainty blue bows dotted her skirt and waist, and her Colonial arm cluster, had the center of pink predominating, with a circle of blue flowers around the edge.

Little Margaret Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Fisher of Wallace avenue, as flower girl, took her bow in a frosted white organdy frock over blue satin, patterned floor length. Pink bows were used as the trimming, and a wreath of rose buds were worn on her head.

Paul Zimmerman of Youngstown, served the groom as best man. Other attendants were Dr. Carl Rian of Massillon, O., Dr. W. G. Totterdale of Warren, O., and Russell J. Melvin, the latter, brother of the bride, who ushered.

The church altar was beautified with an arrangement of graceful palms, ferns and lillies, and completing the setting were brass candelabrum holding glowing cathedral candles.

As the triumphant tunes of Mendelssohn's Wedding Chorus rang forth, the bridal party retired to the rear of the church where a congratulatory period was held. Later, the principals, with the immediate families and relatives numbering upwards of sixty, went to the Melvin residence for an informal reception and wedding supper. The menu was served from an attractively arranged table, with the theme of gold and white, intermingled with pastel tints, predominating. The traditional tiered cake, guarded by lighted tapers, was prominently placed.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Melvin selected a dusty rose chiffon floor length gown, with jacket effect, and a hat to harmonize. The groom's mother, Mrs. Bogue, was attired in a cornflower blue lace gown, toe length with matching hat. Both wore shoulder bouquets of gardenias.

Later in the evening, Dr. Bogue, and his bride departed on a three-week motor trip through the South. For traveling, Mrs. Bogue wore a beige dress, made along tailored lines, and a matching coat, with sand brown accompaniments. A shoulder cluster of Spring orchids, completed her attire. Upon returning, the couple will take up residence in the Plaza Apartments on Porter street, Warren, O.

The bride is a graduate of New Castle High school, and also, of Jameson Memorial Hospital for Nurses, in '34. She has taken post graduate work in the New York Hospital at New York City and also, graduate work at Duquesne University. For two years, she was school nurse in New Castle, and more recently, she has been doing private duty nursing at Jameson Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Bogue, a graduate of Western Reserve University, and of Temple University School of Medicine, interned at Harrisburg Hospital, at Harrisburg. He completed special work at Massillion State Hospital, and New York Polyclinic Hospital in New York. Since then, he has been established in Warren, O., as a practicing physician.

Out of town guests were present at the wedding from Cleveland, O., Youngstown, O., Ashland, O., Chicago, Ill., and Philadelphia.

EAST SIDE GARDEN LUNCHEON-PROGRAM

East Side Garden club members were delightfully entertained Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Harold Ferver, Norwood avenue, when they met in regular session. The occasion was in the form of a 1 o'clock luncheon party, and aiding the hostess in serving a delicious repast were Mrs. Arthur Martin, Mrs. Harry Sturdevant and Mrs. W. D. Kelty.

Routine affairs were conducted, with "My Favorite Wildflower" being given in response to roll call. Mrs. Catherine McEntire read an especially interesting paper on "Wildflowers In Danger Of Extinction" as one of the features. Another splendid paper entitled "Wild Flowers In the Home Garden" was contributed by Mrs. Harold Ferver, and Mrs. Albert Wilson pleased with her article on "Spring and New Life".

Plans were made to plant and beautify the lot at the corner of Pearson and East Washington streets as one of their summer projects. In addition, the committees for school gardens, sponsored by the East Side Garden club, were appointed.

The next meeting will be held at Crawford Oakridge Home on May 8 with Mrs. Katherine McEntire hostess in charge.

AMERICANS PREPARE TO TOUR

THE itchy foot, one of the most pronounced of American characteristics, is going to hand business a $6,000,000,000 boost this Summer.

That's an estimate of what the people of the United States will spend on travel and things connected with it in 1940. That is a tremendous business, the third largest, in fact, in the country.

This year, for the first time in many years, practically all of it will be spent in the western hemisphere, and most of it in the United States and its possessions. Europe is largely closed this year to the traveler, and the quarter of a billion dollars which used to be spent there on a single Summer's travel will tinkle in western cash registers this season.

The New York and San Francisco fairs will continue to draw their millions. The national parks and favorite domestic Summer resorts will again be strong magnets.

But more than ever before, this year will be Pan American year for the wayfarer. Many thousands will become acquainted with American territories and possessions for the first time—Alsaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands. Thousands will seize the opportunity to drive across the borders to call on our next-door neighbors, Canada and Mexico.

It is an unparalleled opportunity, with Europe closed, for the Americas to get acquainted with each other.

U. S. AGAIN ASSUMES LEADERSHIP

Sooner or later by one means or another America takes the lead in most phases of industrial production. There is the matter of magnesium, the lightest of the metals, and increasingly useful in reducing the weight of vehicles such as airplanes so that they can carry more pay load.

Until recently Germany was the leader in production of magnesium, annually mining 12,000 of the world's 22,000 tons. Then American industry got busy. There wasn't enough magnesium ore to put America into the lead. Dow Chemical Company began experimenting with the recovery of magnesium from ocean water. The sea contains only a tenth of one per cent of magnesium whereas the ores run as high as 30 per cent.

But the company put up a $5,000,000 plant in Texas and went to it. A few years ago this country produced only 2,500 tons of magnesium annually. Now more than twice that much is being produced and American production is expected soon to exceed 12,500 tons annually.

Fifteen years ago the price of magnesium in the United States was $2 a pound. It is down to 28 cents now and is contributing vastly to America's wide leadership in airplane production.

WILLIAM FAVERSHAM

Theater-goers of an older generation will recall with a little thrill of romantic delight the name of William Faversham, one of the American stage's most versatile actors. At the beginning of the century, when he was in his early thirties, Faversham was "the hero of a thousand matinees." Tall, handsome, superbly gifted, he was an artist of distinction, an ornament to the theater.

From youth to old age William Faversham played many parts, gaining his greatest fame in "The Squaw Man," a play in which he delighted large audiences. Throughout his long stage career, however, he remained faithful to his first love—Shakespeare.

William Faversham's life was as romantic and dramatic as any of the parts which he interpreted during his stage career. He ran away from home, fought with the British army in India, starved in New York, rose to the heights, gained and lost fortunes, married three times and ended his days in an actor's home.

His death in poverty at the age of seventy-two is not a strange or incongruous circumstance in view of the great diversity of experiences which life brought to him and the traditional incompetency of great artists in safeguarding their material interests.

WE'D RATHER MOW IT THAN EAT IT

Tea-table veterans who have often had the choice of starving to death or practically eating their way across a lawn in the form of dainty sandwiches of indiscriminate greens will scarcely be excited by the announced discovery of a way to make grass edible.

It was their impression that modern hostesses had long ago found that crushed grass and mayonnaise, spread between slices of bread cunningly cut in the shape of hearts, clubs, spades and diamonds, made the perfect bridge menu.

The new plan for using grass as a food calls for drying it into a fine powder, palatable, cheap and packed with vitamins, that can be used to make pancakes, cookies, candies, breakfast food and the like. The chemists say that the great vitamin content of this food will make it valuable in preventing pellagra, promoting skin health, helping the nerves and keeping the hair from turning gray.

There is historic precedent for eating grass. Nebuchadnezzar, one may recall, was turned out to pasture. But who cares to follow in Nebuchadnezzar's footsteps? Who wants to face the morning world with a stack of pancakes made from sweepings of the lawn-mower borrowed from next door?

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

CITIZENSHIP BEGINS IN THE HOME

Citizenship, good or bad begins at home. And we parents are primarily responsible for it in our children. The school is doing a good job of teaching citizenship, but it could do much better if we parents did as well—if we gave teachers better citizens to begin with.

The basic attitudes and habits of citizenship in our children are pretty well established before they enter school, and these basic attitudes and habits are more dependent on the home than the school thereafter.

Among the ABC's of citizenship are regard for the rights of others, respect for authority and readiness to share and bear responsibility among those with whom one mingles, especially at home and in the home neighborhood.

Basic Inhibitions

These virtues presuppose inculcation of some basic inhibitions early in the child, care of property, respect for things that belong to others, self-reliance and sharing in the common chores and duties about the home.

We educate the child in good citizenship at home and we train him early in the unambiguous meaning of NO, rarely spoken; as we train him, the time that he begins to toddle that there are a few things he must not have and a few things he must not do; as we train him to be very careful, within reason, of his playthings and of the furniture, and as me train him neither to mar nor destroy things belonging to others, or to use them without permission of the owner. We must see that he gets discomfort from violating these principal and comfort from observing them.

We let him learn responsibility for taking care of himself and his own possessions as soon as he is able, and help him find satisfaction in doing so. We let him carry on his own conversation. We let him answer the questions meant for him. We let him have as many choices and decisions as his protection and the rights of others warrant.

Set Up Standards

We train him in responsibility for bringing himself in from play, sending himself regularly to bed, preparing himself for meals, and the like, in accordance with clearly established standards.

Gradually he is assigned one and later a few more, simple tasks to be done every day. He also is allowed to do some things which don't seem to him to be drudgery.

He learns to handle money, and to get along agreeably with his playmates. He learns to co-operate and is liked by other children and adults in the neighborhood.

All these things he learns best in the home of love and sympathy and understanding, where he feels secure, with parents who themselves are good citizens. Such are favorable beginnings of good citizenship. Do you agree or disagree?

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Don't you think the average school cafeteria is pretty hard on children's nerves?

A. I certainly do; and on their mental health. It amazes me that so many school principals who are always saying that "education is life" are content with the bedlam and barbarism at their school lunch period when they might make it a period of best possible education in the niceties of social grace. In most schools in the U. S. the luncheon period is life all right, but "wild life" at its worst.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

LATE COMER

I had intended home to be
Punctually in time for tea
And well upon my way was I
When Sandburg's Lincoln caught my eye
And something dragged me through the door
To ramble through those volumes four.

I know 'twill be in vain to say
I didn't mean that long to stay
Or tell her that I didn't know
Lincoln would hold a fellow so.
She'll merely say in scorn to me:
"You said you'd be on time for tea!"

Yet there he stood in open view,
Lincoln, all jacketed in blue,
And when I'd come to volume four
The man was closing up the store
And saying: "Sir, I'd gladly wait,
But I've a wife, and we've a date!"

I know she won't believe a word
When I explain how this occurred!
I know just what she's going to say
When I explain my long delay.
"You might have stopped at volume three!
You promised you'd be home for tea."

Unless you are tall, slender and graceful, beware of the following: Exaggerated puffed sleeves, chubby puffed boleros, long-coat suits and two-toned suits (with skirt and coat of contrasting colors). All of these make the figure look shorter and broader. From out of somewhere in the world, our civilization is receiving a large quota of short, stocky women and girls, who should never wear flared or box coats with wide puffed sleeves, making them look shorter and wider. The clothes sketched on the left are of the wrong type and those on the right are of the correct type to slenderize the figure.

Readers' Questions Answered

Dear Miss Markel: During the later part of May I am going on a trip across the continent. I expect to be gone for about a month. I should appreciated it if you would tell me just what clothes are needed, both for the train and after I arrive at my destination.— W. J.

Answer: Take along with you both late Spring and Summer clothes. A few light-weight, dark dresses for wear en route will prove indispensable, or bette still a Spring suit. Regardless of where you go it is always wise to take along some heavy clothing for stormy weather and those unseasonable cool days which so often appear during the Summer months.

To be prepared for such weather, even though you do not anticipate it, carry in your wardrobe about two woolen dresses and a Spring coat. No doubt, you will, most of the time, be wearing cool, Summer dresses, as the climate, if you are fortunate enough to have dry weather, will warrant such clothes.

Needless to say, comfortable shoes for walking should be included in your wardrobe, as should evening and dinner clothes, that you may be prepared for all social emergencies.

Dear Castle, Pa.

Dear Sir: For the sake of accuracy alone, and for the information of our Western Pennsylvanians, atop the Philadelphia City hall stands a colossal statue of William Penn, known familiarly to Philadelphians and suburbanites as "Billy." This figure is visible for miles on a clear day and quite large enough to supplement any lack in any other of this historic state

Please accept this slight correction as having been written in a spirit of friendliness and in a desire to see our state correctly represented. The item referred to appeared in your column of April 1, though I presume the date has no relative significance.

High And Low Tariff Groups Change Farmers Now Become Protectionists Industry In Need Of Foreign Trade

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Our American high tariff and low tariff groups have been swapping sides at a great rate in recent years. Secretary of State Cordell Hull's international trade agreements didn't start the realignment, but they're hastened it.

Time was (not long ago, either) when American agriculture was predominantly free trade or tariff-for-revenue-only. It wasn't protectionistic, anyway. Its argument was that this was essentially a crop-producting country. In fact, it produced (as it still does) far more farm stuff than we could consume here at home.

Consequently it wanted foreign customers. Now, it stood to reason that our farmers wanted foreign manufactured junk admitted as freely as possible into the United States, to pay for their wheat, corn, cotton, et cetera. There were some exceptions, but that was the rule That's why the pre-eminently agricultural south was so overwhelmingly Democratically free trade, or low tariff, at most.

But at that stage of the game our manufacturers relatively were young. They were afraid of foreign competition. So they wanted protection against it. That's why they wanted protectionists.

Times Have Changed

As previously remarked, times have changed—or are changing mighty rapidly.

Our urban industries are no longer "infants". They're the ones today which produce much more than we can consume at home and are clamoring for foreign markets. Protection no longer suits their purpose, as it did formerly.

On the opposite hand, some of our agricultural interests are beginning to be bothered by foreign competition and are not such low tariffites as of yore.

I don't mean to say that there's been a complete flop-over. A good many manufacturers still are protectionists, largely as a matter of habit. However, our biggest industrialists, if not out-and-out free traders, at least are friendly to reciprocity agreements, which trend in free trade's direction.

Some of our farmers are still more decidedly protectionistic than others. Our dairymen, for instance, complain that reciprocity deals have hit them in particular, by letting foreign cheese, butter, eggs and other edibles into the United States in competition with their own domestic offerings.

Autos Versus Dairying

Of all the industrialists, automobile makers probably profit the least from tariff protection.

Henry Ford, particularly, is outright handicapped by it. Even if we admitted foreign cars duty free, no foreign factory on earth could successfully underbid him in America. Contrariwise, he can compete with any foreign car maker, in his own country, unless hampered by that country's local tariff restrictions. It naturally follows that any reciprocal dicker which lets Ford into a foreign car market is right down his alley.

Well, we concluded such a compact with Canada. Fine for Henry!

But, of course, in order to get that concession from the Canadians, we had to make some concession in their favor. We did—on dairy products. The result is, Minnesota and Wisconsin dairymen aver, Canadian dairies simply are wiping their business off the map on this side of the border. They say that Yankee dairies have been forced to shut down, by the hundreds, as a result of that dicker.

Here's An Illustration

That's a conspicuous case.

Yet legislators from our agricultural states insist that it's characteristic.

Our cattlemen, among others, are all by the ears over what they term the threat that Argentine meat and hides will be turned loose in the United States in return for considerate Argentine treatment of our factory-made goods—a nice thing for our manufacturers, but poison, our cattlemen maintain, to their interest.

Same way with Australian wool!

It might be true of foreign cotton.

In short, America's erstwhile free trade agriculture is turning protectionistic, and our erstwhile protectionistic urban industry is turning free traderish.

The Great Game Of Politics

The SEC Vacancy

WASHINGTON, April 11. THE tendency of the Securities and Exchange Commission to construe generously, and exercise fully the extraordinary powers conferred under extraordinary laws has stirred new apprehensions in business and financial circle. But there now seems reason for deeper concern.

BECAUSE upon the selection of a successor to Mr. George Matthews recently resigned, seems to hinge the question of whether the commission shall continue as a moderately reasonable body, fairly free from punitive passion or become militantly radical and emphatically hostile—particularly to the utilities and insurance companies. It is accurate to say that this is as important an appointment as the President has had to make in a long time.

MR. MATTHEWS is a Republican and while in sympathy with the New Deal in general, inclined to be conservative in applying the SEC Act. Most of the time his was a restraining influence. With Chairman Frank, Mr. Matthews and Mr. Healy there was a majority able to thwart the extremes to which Mr. Leon Henderson and his colleague, Mr. Eicher, thirsted to go. If Mr. Roosevelt names in place of Mr. Matthews a Republican who shares or is inclined toward the unorthodox views of Mr. Henderson, the course of the commission is likely to be turned much more strongly to the left. If the new commissioner, who has to be nominally Republican, tends to support the chairman, then a relatively calm and restrained policy will be followed.

OBVIOUSLY, the decision hinges upon whose advice Mr. Roosevelt takes, and it is not encouraging to find the usually accurate reflectors of White house feelings forecasting that the President will not act until Mr. Tommy Corcoran returns from his wedding trip. Clearly this means that it is Mr. Corcoran's advice upon which he will rely. Recalling Mr. Corcoran's attitude toward business—particularly the public utilities—as reaveled by Mr. Moley in his book, this would indicate the selection of a radical full of venom against Wall street and anxious to crack down upon every head in sight.

IT seems to be taken for granted that Mr. Frank will not be consulted. Nor will Mr. Justice Douglas,

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

QUEER FIGURES

There is something very "screwy" about the figures given out continually concerning the number of unemployed citizens capable of working, in this country. The figures that are given out range from eight to 12 million

Since 1900 there has been a great change in the business of manufactured articles for sale in these United States. There has been a multitude of things made which all citizens want and buy. There have been a great many changes in the hours of labor.

There is the motor vehicle,—the outstanding commodity, that was practcially not in existence in 1900, to which alone can be credited at least 25,000,000 employees, working at the making of the motor vehicle and the things that go into the motor vehicles; the men and women selling motor vehicles; the paving of the roads and highways over which the motor vehicle travels. There are all the articles for domestic use, such as the electric refrigerator. There is the radio, not only the radio stations scattered over the United States, but the thousands of miles of telephone wires connecting them; the number of people engaged in broadcasting and the receiving sets themselves—millions of them; all the material that goes into their manufacture and the thousands of stores devoting most of their space to the display and sale of the radio.

The iron and steel industry has expanded itself tremendously in the last 40 years, so has the copper industry, to say nothing about cement, rubber, china, distribution of electric power and the thousand and one articles used by the consumers of this power. There is the great expansion in the business of making and selling plumbing supplies, a part of which is the china industry. Every new house and practically every old house in America today is now boasting of a bathroom and sanitary plumbing. In 1900 comparatively few homes boasted of a bathroom.

I could go on with a tremendous list of things that are being made today that were not made in 1900. Probably the only trade that has suffered has been the trade of blacksmith, — the horse shoer; the making of horseshoes, horseshoe

To Close Library Next Tuesday For Special Meeting

Main Library And South Side Branch To Close On Evening Of April 16

That the board of trustees of the public library considers the citizens' mass meeting at the Cathedral next Tuesday evening to be of considerable importance is shown by the fact that they have authorized the library to be closed at 8 o'clock on that evening. This will permit all library workers to attend the meeting.

According to Miss Alice Sterling, librarian, this will affect the main library and also the South Side branch, and will release staff workers, pages and janitors, who would otherwise be at work.

Therefore, Miss Sterling cautions, if you plan to visit the library Tuesday, either the main building or south side branch, you must do so before 8 p. m.

Phillard McClure Home From Navy

Mahoningtown Youth Has Completed Training At Navy Radio School

Phillard E. McClure, son of Mrs. Alice McClure of 703 West Clayton street, is spending five days leave of absence from the United States navy at his home here.

McClure just recently completed a three months course of training in radio at the naval air station, Hampton Roads, Va., and has been transferred to the U. S. S. Manley for duty.

former chairman of the commission. Those in position to know say that the latter recently has come to the conclusion that his position precludes him from making patronage proposals or having political ambitions. That is all to the good and it seems a pity Mr. Douglas did not acquire this conviction before his friends made a joke of him by boosting him first for the Presidency and then for the Vice Presidency.

IT is interesting to note that one of the reasons given for believing the President will accpte Mr. Corcoran as his guide in this matter is the recent criticism of the SEC made by the Investment Bankers Association, which the commission met with the silly charge of "Government baiting." It is a little ridiculous that any agency of an Administration which has done so much business baiting in the last seven years, should scream "Government baiting" the moment a business organization ventures to criticize a Government board or suggest an investigation.

NOR is it of much benefit to those members of the SEC sensitive and resentful over the least intimidation that they are inspired by prejudice against the House of Morgan, that the chief underwriting rival of the Morgans should rush to the SEC defense, and spread the report that the criticism came from the Morgans. That kind of championship is more likely to create suspisicons than dispel them. That kind of defense might become embarrassing.

BUT that is aside from the main point, which is that in the past. Mr. Roosevelt almost invariably has shown his resentment over any criticism from business or financial sources by radical action, of one sort or another, calculated to shock the critics. There is no reason to think he has changed his disposition. The feeling is that the chances favor the selection of a man more apt to go with the Messrs. Henderson and Eicher than with the more moderate Mr. Frank. However, if this notion turns out well founded it certainly will increase the pressure for an early Congregational investigation of the SEC. Some close observers feel that that is bound to come next year anyhow.

nails and the articles that were necessary to the blacksmith in the following of his trade and the manufacture of horse-drawn vehicles. These commodities are only a drop in the bucket.

There are I believe, without question, $50,000,000 jobs and positions, if you will, that were not filled by American workmen and officials that were not in existence in 1900. The population of this country today has not grown since 1900 to the extent of 50,000,000.

Miss Dorothy Thompson, in the New York Herald-Tribune and Arthur Krock in the New York Times have suggested that the country's actual unemployment problem is only about one-fourth as serious as it has been commonly thought to be. That is, that the creation of somewhere between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 jobs would absorb all the unemployed employables. Before the year is out the census figures will be available and unless the Powers in Washington juggle these figures there ought to be a clear-cut understanding concerning unemployment. Those in charge of the 1940 census assure the people that no answer that they give to the census taker will be made public. That is a very queer statement. The figures of the census should be for public consumption and the facts should be accurately reported to the public. One thing these figures will show, unquestionably, is that while in 1940 comparatively few women were employed in this country, today there is a tremendous number of women employed in factories, in offices and private works. It is not unusual to find both the husband and wife and the grown children of a family all employed at good wages,—a condition that was practically unknown in 1900.

One thing is certain: If American business is permitted in the future to work out its own salvation, it will do it and it would not surprise me at all, in such an event, to find a shortage of labor.

Yesterday, a library patron, who prefers to remain anonymous, told the librarian that since 1934 he had read about 600 books, all borrowed from the public library. To support his statement, he showed her a small notebook, with the books listed by author and title up to 599. In addition to this, he was taking home another armfull of books.

The librarian asked what type of books he preferred. He replied: 'As I read for recreation, the books are almost all fiction with a large proportion of western stories." During a part of this time he had been unemployed and at that time had read more than usual. But he is now working and still reads. Can anyone top this record?

TWO-CENT MARGIN PREVENTS GRAND LARCENY TERM

(International News Service)

DENVER.—Because of a "bargain sale" evaluation placed on a case of stolen brushes by Judge Floyd F. Miles of the Denver District court, Robert L. Lear, 37, of Wichita, Kan., is in Denver county jail instead of in the state penitentiary.

Lear was saved from a grand larceny sentence by a mere two cents.

Arrested Dec. 1, Lear admitted having stolen the brushes from the automobile of a salesman. The district attorney's office set a value of $60 on the merchandise and Lear was charged with grand larceny.

The defendant pleaded the brushes were worth only $20. The manager of the company owning the brushes said they were worth $34.20. An expert called in to decide the issue claimed the brushes were worth $17.35.

Judge Miles then took a hand.

"Gentlemen," he said, "the stage is set for a bargain sale. The court finds the brushes and suitcase to be worth exactly $19.98. That's petty larceny."

He then sentenced Lear, who breathed a sigh of relief, to 60 days in the county jail.

NO MORE SKIMPY LITTLE MEALS SINCE PA. RESIDENT TOOK VENDOL

Feels fine all the time; eats better, looks better, sleeps better, since getting relief from constipation. Advises everyone to take Vendol.

MRS. ANNA CASHINA

"After reading my experience, I believe everyone who suffers as I used to will want to start taking Vendol without delay," declares Mrs. Anna Cashina, of 208 East Fifth St., Erie, Penna.

"Before discovering Vendol, I hadn't been feeling so well for quite a while and it was all due to a bad case of constipation which brought on many symptoms. My stomach was so sour and upset after meals that I would skimp on my food hoping I wouldn't suffer from gas, bloating, acid risings, palpitation and 'heartburn'. Sometimes the gas cramps in my stomach cut like a knife even getting me up during the night sometimes. It's not surprising that I would get up many mornings feeling all worn out with no energy to start the day.

"But it's quite different today. Since taking Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets the constipation was relieved and I'm getting the smoothest, easiest, most relief from the upset stomach troucomplete evacuation I've known in a long time and this has brought ble and now I don't limit myself to light, skimpy meals but eat everything that comes on the table but I don't have the gas, cramps, or other troubles any more. What a pleasure that is! Is it any wonder that I recommend Vendol so highly."

Start on Vendol today; see for yourself what grand relief it gives.

Vendol is sold by most all leading druggists everywhere and is highly recommended here by Eckerd's of New Castle, 118 E. Washington St.

THE SPRING MEDICINE FOR A MILLION PEOPLE

"YOUNG TOM EDISON"

Starting Tomorrow at THE PENN

This is a story of triumph. The triumph of a typical American boy, who was blessed with three gifts . . . courage, imagination and faith. His name might have been John Jones or Bill Smith. It happened to be Tom Edison . . . Bigger than "Boys Town" . . . is the supreme triumph of America's own Mickey Rooney. A thrilling motion picture entertainment.

The I. E. S. Tag Means BETTER LIGHT FOR BETTER SIGHT

YOUNG TOM EDISON

HAD AN IDEA

Thomas A. Edison February 11, 1847

THEN

Edison patented the incandescent lamp in 1880. It gave us the first steady, non-flickering lighting device a great benefit to human eyesight, which had endured candles, lamps and other types of lights.

6 Years of "Better Light"

As electric lights were improved, it became necessary to shade them to prevent glare. Often much of the seeing value was destroyed by improper shades. Several years ago, engineers took up the problem of light and eyesight. From their study came the modern I. E. S. lamps, scientifically designed to give Better Light for Better Sight.

TRAVEL PLEASANTRY

(International News Service)

NEW YORK.—Nearly 12,000 of the passenger cars on American railroads are now air-conditioned, the Association of American Railroads reported.

THE STORY OF THE Baker's Baby

The woman's voice was frantic. But in the torrent of broken English that came over the line, the operator managed to recognize a few words.

"My baby . . he's very sick . . please help!"

"What doctor shall I call for you?" asked the operator.

"I don't know any doctor! Oh, hurry!"

"All right," said the operator. "I'll get you a doctor right away. What's your telephone number and where do you live?"

"My number is 3162. Four-three-nine Burton Street. Oh, thank you so much!"

Quickly the operator called the town's four doctors. But none of them was home. Then she remembered the taxi stand near Burton Street. She called that number. One ring. Another ring. Another—and at last an answer!

"Please rush a cab to 439 Burton Street. Pick up a mother and her baby and rush them to the County Hospital. This is an emergency. Hurry!"

"Four thirty-nine Burton Street? Okay!"

Then the operator called back to reassure the frantic mother. "I couldn't find a doctor," she said, "but a taxi is coming to take you and your baby to the hospital. Shall I call your husband?"

"Yes! Yes! Please! His name is Tony. At Roma Bakery. My baby's so sick, I'm afraid he . . ." Then she hung up.

A few seconds later, the operator had the father on the line, telling him what had happened.

"Sure, sure! I go right away!" Tony shouted.

Soon the baby was out of danger. A few days later the operator was sitting at the head of the table in Tony Roma's home.

There was a big spaghetti dinner topped off with a huge cake which Tony had baked himself and decorated especially for her. On it, carefully drawn in colored frosting, was a telephone!

This was, of course, an unusual case. Most of the millions of calls we handle each day go through like clockwork—smoothly, easily and quickly. But when the unusual does happen . . . when someone is in trouble . . . we're always willing to go out of our way to help.

The first words ever heard over a telephone were a call for help. Ever since that time, the telephone has been helping people in all kinds of ways. Let it help you—in business and household matters—in social affairs—in emergencies and in dozens of every-day chores.

Holland Faces New War Threat

Nazi Propaganda Drive Within Borders Is Newest Menace

SOVIET FUNDS WILL BE USED

By JAMES E. BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON.—Holland today is facing not only the threat of German invasion from without but also the menace of high-powered Nazi propaganda from within her own borders.

This was revealed to International News Service by a Soviet authority who said that Germany has already come to an agreement with Russia concerning Holland. He added that money which has been pouring into Holland with the object of furthering the interests of Communism is being handled by the Nazi party.

The Dutch Nazi party, known as the N.S.B., under the leadership of a former Dutch engineer named Anton Mussert, has had a chequered career. In the 1937 elections Mussert went to the electorate with a "United Holland" slogan and won 44 seats. Last April in the provincal states election N.S.B. lost 23 seats.

Black Front Organized

Mussert was obviously losing ground so Hitler sent in other agents to assist him. One of these men was Arnold Meyer. He organized a party, affiliated with the N.S.B., called The Black Front.

Members of the Black Front give the Nazi salute and even say "Heil Hitler" while doing it. Dr. Mittler, formerly an associate of Dr. Ley, chief of the German Nazi labor section, is at present acting as liaison officer between the Nazis and the Dutch Communists.

The Nazis possess two newspapers in Holland, the National Dagblad and the Volk en Vanderland. Spotlight in the center of the window of the Amsterdam office of the National Dagblad is a smiling picture of Adolf Hitler.

Among the present anti-government activities is a discreet campaign against the House of Orange and a whispering campaign against Prince Bernhard, husband of Princess Juliana. Other methods resemble those used with such success against Austria and Czechoslovakia.

The massing of German troops on the Dutch frontier, it is said, is part of the blackmail. Though Germany may have no immediate intention of invading Holland, the pressure from without is intended to be used in connection with the intensified pressure from within.

Although much has been written concerning the Dutch ability to defend Holland by opening her dykes, it is noteworthy that the last time this was done was 270 years ago against Louis XIV—before the advent of air power.

The Germans, it is known, have just constructed a seaplane base west of Borkum right on the Dutch north frontier line, and from this base the Germans can bomb Rotterdam, Amsterdam and all the other large congested cities within a few minutes.

Since 1929 Dutch exports have fallen by nearly 50 per cent. Only by the cleverest financial strategy and strictly controlled deflation could Holland maintain the gold standard. With a population of only eight millions, Holland has 30,000 unemployed. Right up to the outbreak of hostilities Dutch trade with Germany was declining.

Reich Needs Holland

But because of the Allied blockade Germany needs Holland and may soon demand that she make herself a virtual German protectionate with her foreign policy and her economic policy dictated from Berlin.

The Dutch colonial empire also plays an important part in Hitler's conception of his future relations with Holland. Queen Wilhelmina rules over 60 million members of the colored race, and Germany wants colonies.

If Holland suppresses the Nazi movement within her borders, it may give the Reich the desired provocation; if not, internal trouble lies ahead.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Diphtheria and death used to be intimate pals.

Now they are scarcely on speaking terms.

Thirty years ago mothers dreaded diphtheria.

Epidemics swept through the land and no child was safe.

The death rate was often as high as fifty per cent of cases.

In 1894, the first specific cure, antitoxin, was introduced.

Then in 1913, came toxin-antitoxin to prevent diphtheria.

A few years ago, toxoid was developed, simpler and more potent.

In 1906, 2,400 Pennsylvania children died of diphtheria.

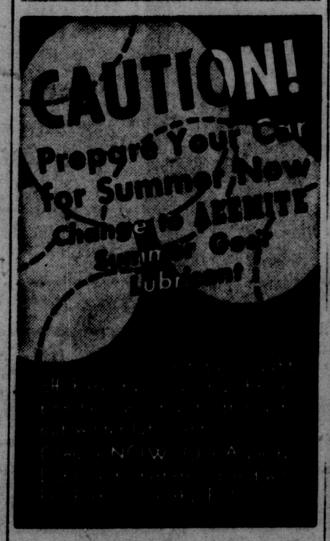

In 1938, thanks to the preventive toxoid, only 102 children died.

There is, today, no excuse for a child to have diphtheria.

Children should be immunized before their first birthday.

New Highway Work Planned

(Special To The News)

MERCER, April 11.—Mercer county commissioners announced today that they have been notified by the state department of highways that approval has been made of a proposed new highway between Clarksville and the railroad over-pass on the Hermitage-Greenville road.

The commissioners said the state will construct four and one-tenth of 22-foot highway, with an eight-foot berm on either side, between Soapy Hill, less than a mile north of Clarksville, and the overpass, eliminating all curves and cutting the grade of most of the hills.

The biggest cut proposed is on Soapy Hill, near the air line beacon, north of Clarksville.

Many Senior High Boys Would Enter Trade School

Boys of the New Castle senior high school are definitely interested in trade school classes, according to the returns of a survey which has just been completed.

Under the proposed plan for trade classes for next year only about 200 boys could be accommodated. The survey shows 422 boys applying for entrance. It was reported to the school board Wednesday night.

Out of the 422 about 200 will be selected, it is anticipated and arrangements made to re-open the shop buildings as an adjunct of the senior high school. Of the 422, 108 came from Grade 9-B, 122 in 9-A, 77 in 10-B and 115 in 10-A.

The American Iron and Steel Institute has asked permission to examine the steelwork in the Lincoln-Garfield school as a part of a nation-wide survey of coverings used on steel. Fifty buildings have been selected over the United States and the Lincoln-Garfield school is one of these. To make the inspection, it will be necessary to remove a small section of plaster. The Institute will have the plaster replaced.

P. H. Bridenbaugh, head coach of the senior high school since 1922, had his contract renewed Wednesday night for one year.

A request was received from the girls' physical education classes that they be permitted to hold an outdoor festival at Taggart stadium on the night of June 3 and that the floodlights be installed for the occasion. The board agreed to go along with the idea.

The county commissioners asked the school board for a room in which WPA workers could operate during the project which will put a host of old newspaper files into shape. The newspapers were recently given to the public library and the commissioners have agreed to sponsor a rebinding project.

Britain Seeks Trade Outlets

Industry Launches Movement To Win New Foreign Markets

GOVERNMENT TO LEND ASSISTANCE

By HOWARD BERRY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON.—With commerce now the fourth arm in war, Britain is today making a great drive to capture new foreign trade markets, particularly former "enemy markets" estimated to be worth more than $500,000,000 of trade.

Every industry in the country is organizing itself for this trade offensive, which is being sponsored by the new British Export Council, presided over by Scottish business man Sir Andrew Duncan, president of the board of trade.

To give the campaign impetus and every encouragement, the British government has set no limit to the aid it will give the industries.

Britain needs to raise immediately the annual value of her exports from $2,190,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 in order that, with expenditure on imports of munitions, food and raw materials so increased, she may balance her overseas trade accounts.

'Travelling Trade Fairs'

A series of "travelling trade fairs' to form shop-window for British industry in foreign countries is, it is learned, one of the plans under consideration.

Small but attractive exhibitions would be arranged, so that prospective customers could see the goods before ordering. These shows will probably immediately follow British participation in the New York's World's Fair this year.

Confidence is expressed by Sir Andrew Duncan that once the world sees British products the rest is easy, that trade worth hundreds of millions of dollars a year is available to the most energetic and enterprising seller.

As the result, special export groups are being established to examine the markets and to organize manufacture and export.

Women Experts Enlist

Women experts are being called upon to help in building up a demand for British fashions.

Through their groups, British industries will keep in close contact with the government.

Every facility will be given to exporters, and according to a White Paper published on the trade drive, the Export Council will co-ordinate its efforts.

Voluntary co-operation will be given a fair trial, but, if necessary, Ministers are prepared to introduce legislation to compel the manufacture of foods most needed for foreign markets.

The British Government will also conduct publicity for British trade generally, give market information to exporters, and organize joint marketing schemes.

Home Consumers To Aid

Home consumers too are to be asked to contribute to the foreign trade campaign. They will be requested to give up some of their comforts so that more goods may be sent abroad, and the export trade can be built up.

While the British public will not be asked to do without necessities, luxuries and even some things now in everyday use may be put on a "Please-do-without" list, so that manufacturers may concentrate on export trade, without having to worry unduly about supplies of raw material.

And to bring this point home to the people of Britain posters bearing some such slogan as "Your overcoat, your automobile, your refrigerator will bring us victory" may be used.

MOONSHINE

As I grow older, I find more things happening that bring back vivid pictures of occurrences in my past. Seeing a horse makes me think of the one that upset me in the snowbank ten miles from home, and I almost froze, because it was twenty-five below zero. If I see a man with only one leg, it recalls that awful night I did my first amputation.

A few weeks ago a woman walked into my office, sat down, and as I looked at her, I recalled where I had last seen her. I had happened to attend her in one of the most unusual confinements I have ever handled. The woman gave birth to a fine baby girl in a bed alongside a home-made moonshine still. As I worked that night, it was with the smell of mash in my nostrils.

I suppose it sounds like a story from the Kentucky mountain country, but believe me, that state hasn't any monopoly on moonshiners. We have some right here in Ontario, and have had for a long time.

I never had any experience with moonshiners until prohibition was declared during the first World war. Before that, of course, I had heard that there were men back in the woods who distilled their own "corn," but I had never seen any. Then, after prohibition, up here in what was then frontier country, whiskey making became quite general. The country was thinly settled, and there were plenty of woods and very rew roads. The police either didn't try very hard or were unable to round up all the moonshiners.

When I first ran into this moonshining, I tried to get the people to stop making it. Most of their product was rather crude and raw, and it made them sick. As time went on they got quite expert at making the moonshine.

At first, I was a bit worried about whether I should tell the police what was going on, and then I decided against it. I knew if I did they would just go to jail, others would go on moonshining in their places, and the families of the jailed men would suffer. Or, they might resist the law, for guns were plentiful in those days, and someone might get shot.

The parish priest and I had talks about it several times, for the moral side of the matter was bothering him a little too. Amongst those people it was not a moral question. We talked it out, and decided that we should leave law enforcement to the police.

I knew if I informed on those people, they would be my sworn enemies, they wouldn't let me go among them and look after their sick. That meant no one would be looking after them. Anyway, I think a doctor should mind his own business.

So I kept my standing with the moonshiners. When I got near a camp where I knew some moonshining was going on, I'd blow my horn, if I was driving a car, or if it were winter, I'd sing very loud.

One day I forgot to warn them, and I got shot at. The men operating the still thought they were being raided, and they were quite ready to fight.

British Claim Germans Suffer Heavy Shipping Loss

Declare 41,600 Tons Sent Down

British Communique Reports Royal Air Force Is Extensively Engaged

REPORT SCAPA FLOW ATTACK REPELLED

(International News Service)

LONDON, April 11—No less than 41,600 tons of German shipping have been sunk and 31,800 tons have been damaged or sunk as a result of engagements with Norwegian or allied vessels since Monday, it was estimated in London today.

These estimates were based on latest reports received in the British capitol.

Planes Active

A British communique said that since early Sunday morning all operational commands of the royal air force have been engaged intensively in operations against the enemy. It added:

"On Sunday a bombing attack was launched against a strong enemy naval force off Horn's reef. On Monday they carried out extensive reconnaissance flights and repelled an attack on Scapa flow, shooting down five German planes.

"Throughout Tuesday they were engaged in reporting the position of enemy warships in Norwegian waters and in the evening bombed and sank a German cruiser off Bergen.

Reconnoitering Done

"Wednesday long range royal air force fighting planes reconnoitered Norwegian airdromes occupied by the enemy. At least three enemy aircraft were destroyed.

"In the evening our planes repelled further enemy attacks upon Scapa flow, in which seven bombers were shot down and two others were damaged so that it is unlikely they made their bases. Enemy losses for this period totalled nineteen planes and British losses amounted to six.

"These operations were carried out in addition to normal security and convoy protection patrols. As a result of our reconnaissance patrols much valuable information was made available to our naval and air forces engaged with the enemy."

Half Million People In Britain Non-Existent

By R. A. BARNETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON.—In Great Britain today there are more than 500,000 persons who officially don't exist.

They are the people who failed to register under Britain's National Registration Act. Among them are several thousand young men liable for conscription.

By their refusal to register, these men are today throughout the country forced to live a hand-to-mouth existence. They possess neither identity card nor ration book. Unlike their fellow countrymen, they have not been provided with a gas-mask.

As far as rations are concerned, these "bookless" people do not go without food. One does not have to produce a ration book to eat in any restaurant. But any one of them, at any time, is liable to be stopped and asked to produce his National Registration Card.

'Daytime' Reserved

Under the Registration Act persons in Britain are required to show their cards "to persons who are authorized by law to ask you to produce it." Therefore, it is held, these men, fearing that they may at any time be asked to produce their cards, have made their "daytime" from dusk to dawn. Many, according to recent disclosures, have become willing recruits for the underworld.

In London a number of these conscription "dodgers" are living on the fringes of the crime world. Some act as odd-job men for bookmakers, others are bell-hops, cloakroom attendents, bandboys, and waiters at the many low-type clubs.

Under the present war-time conditions here, it is no great task for these "dodgers" to act as they are reported to be doing now. With the many "reserved" occupations, seldom is any man or youth in mufti asked to produce his identity card.

Nevertheless, it is thought that the next few months will show if these "missing" persons will be able to carry on as they are now.

CAMP RUN

STORM DAMAGE

The high wind of near tornado velocity last Wednesday afternoon resulted in thousands of dollars' worth of damage in the Scott Ridge and Yellow Creek districts, north of Camp Run. Lightning entered the home and garage of William Hollerman at Middle Lancaster and set fire to both buildings. Mrs. John Measel of the Little Yellow Creek district, probably was the heaviest loser as a result of the freak tornado, when a barn, corn crib and garage were completely destroyed. At the Roland Bence farm, the heavy wind lifted a chicken house and carried it nearly a quarter of a mile into the road on Scott Ridge. The barn roof at the same farm was carried to the Carrie Workley farm and deposited on the barn roof there, causing considerable damage. A wagon shed and a silo were also destroyed at the Workley farm. The Howard Bupp farm and the Troutman farm also suffered damage.

16 SCIENTISTS

to amaze world with great discovery about

CONSTIPATION

Tests at world-famous hospital reveal how Nature's own gentle, complete "daily" bowel movements can be produced

Get relief from headaches, indigestion and nervousness due to Constipation. Then feel peppier—happier of mind. Brighter eyes.

AFTER months of intensive tests in one of the world's most famous hospitals—16 scientists have discovered sensational facts about an IDEAL "daily" treatment for constipation—

It has been definitely proven one of the chief causes of constipation is lack of moisture in the colon. Waste matter then becomes caked, dry, hard and difficult to move on. Constipation often follows with its headaches, dull eyes, sallow muddy skin, and you "tire easily."

Tests showed that the taking of many cathartics, laxatives, and harsh "roughage" products often made this condition worse.

SUCCESS AT LAST!

But these clever men of science found a way to ACTUALLY PRODUCE NATURE'S OWN GENTLE PLEASANT BOWEL ACTION. Simply take a little daily dose of healthful Kruschen, (world-famous formula), in a glass of water.

Now comes in delightful, pleasant tasting "bubbling" form!

Kruschen now comes in effervescent form—sparkling—"bubbling"—and makes a most pleasant tasting drink. Kruschen keeps waste matter in the colon moist and soft and enables it to be gently expelled from the body. No nausea! No griping! No violence! Truly an IDEAL treatment for more gentle, complete "daily" elimination of harmful poisons, acids and waste. ALSO a splendid mild antacid and kidney diuretic. Inexpensive!! A jar that lasts WEEKS costs only a trifle. Over 245,000,000 jars of Kruschen have been sold by druggstores thruout the world—Kruschen must be good and do the work! Made in U.S.A.

Police Officer's Hearing Starts

in the witnesses because "someone had made an accusation he had allegedly robbed the restaurant" while Shepp was in it between 1 and 6 a. m. March 25.

According to the mayor, there was a crowd in the place. Wine was being consumed. Shepp had suggested that Harry Calvert take the night waiter, Ignatius Wickline, for a walk to sober Wickline up.

Shepp, according to the mayor, stayed in the restaurant, reported to police headquarters every hour but did not report the situation at the restaurant and the mayor charged this as neglact of duty.

In the morning when the owner, Charles F. Ettensohn, reported at the restaurant it was discovered that approximately $15 was missing. (The money was found two weeks later in the bottom of the Frigidaire, testimony developed.)

Police Chief Testifies

Chief of Police Young corroborated the statement made by the mayor and said the witnesses who appeared with Shepp at headquarters were Charles F. Ettensohn, Ignatius Wickline, Harry Calvert and Lowell Fulton.

During the visit to headquarters, Wickline said he hid not remember what had happened March 25 because of his condition, but believed that "Shepp had taken the money for safe-keeping".

Young said Shepp admitted going in and out of the restaurant and also admitted he had not reported conditions that existed in the restaurant. The mayor then discharged Shepp as a policeman, Young stated.

On cross-examination Attorney Powers developed that Wickline had become intoxicated on wine and that the officer had requested Wickline be taken for a walk to sober up.

Ettensohn, the proprietor, was called. He said he visited the restaurant about 6:30 a. m., noted Wickline's condition, also the condition of the place. Wickline was seated on a chair and was not working.

Wicklin told Ettensohn, he testified, that he did not know where the money was and "thought Shepp had taken it for safe keeping". Ettensohn then testified Wickline was in the habit of hiding money if the bills were large.

When the money was not found before evening, it was reported to police. Two weeks later the money was found in a glass in the motor part of the Frigidaire. It was located when the Frigidaire went out of commission.

Restaurant Attendant Called

Wickline, the night attendant at the restaurant, was called. He admitted drinking too much and that he was taken for two walks and some water put on him to sober him up.

He said he found the register "dry". Wickline at first, he testified, believed Shepp had taken the money for safe-keeping. He told Mr. and Mrs. Ettensohn this, he added. Later he learned from Shepp, he stated, Shepp had not taken it.

Wickline admitted on cross-examination he had a habit of secreting the money. Wickline said because of this condition he did not remember things clearly or of putting the money away.

Harry E. Calvert said he went into the restaurant at 2 a. m. Quite a few persons were in it. Officer Shepp asked Calvert, the latter testified, to take Wickline for a walk.

Lowell Fulton called as a witness, was not present.

Powers Speaks

Attorney Powers told council the mayor was justified in investigating the case and that apparently the boys in the restaurant were celebrating.

He said: 'I' do not believe there is any inference here that Shepp took the money." He said others were present while Shepp was there and said there was no testimony that Shepp took the money even for safe-keeping.

Powers said Wickline had a habit of secreting money. He said Shepp's action in not calling in the conditions might justify a reprimand but not dismissal. He asked council to consider the case fairly on the evicence offered.

Mayor Makes Statement

Mayor Mayne then declared: "I want to state that I have had brought to me a report this officer allegedly said: 'They won't do anything to me because I (Shepp) have something on the council and Mayor."

At this point Shepp exclaimed: "I never——"

The mayor did not permit him to finish but turning to Attorney Powers asked the latter to have Shepp take the stand as a witness.

He then said Shepp had had police training at Hershey, related alleged conditions in the restaurant and asserted that while Shepp was in the restaurant and had reported to headquarters five times Shepp had not mentioned conditions in the restaurant.

"Shepp should have called in and closed the restaurant. He was in the seventh ward for protection. However, he wasn't protecting it. A policeman must work if he serves under me," the mayor said.

The mayor then asked council to approve his recommendation to discharge Shepp. Councilman Davies advised council should not exercise snap judgment but should consider the evidence presented in conjunction with any more to be presented.

His motion to recess until this afternoon was adopted.

BELIEVE HITLER HAS OVERREACHED SELF IN NORWAY INVASION

military machine. They predict that Britain herself will suffer heavily before this object is attained, if at all.

Best Place For Britain

Yet it cannot be overlooked that Hitler, who for so long held his army in check along the western front and used his air force only to harry and annoy British naval bases, opened wide the floodgates of total warefare.

Most important, he made the challenge where Britain is or should be best prepared to meet it.

Censorship throughout Europe is stricter today than at any time since the war began. It is not easy to determine the exact status either of the situation in Norway or of the violent air and sea battles raging off the Scandinavian coasts.

But it seems a safe assumption that Hitler was taken entirely by surprise when Norway offered stern resistance to the German invasion. He may have been nearly bowled over by the subsequent enterprise of the British fleet in steaming through the heavily mined Skagerrak and engaging a huge Nazi transport convoy.

Hitler Surprised

The German press and officialdom has delighted of late in referring to Winston Churchill as "that little old man in the British admiralty" and holding up the British navy to scorn and ridicule. Time and time again German propagandists have charged that in air raids on Scapa Flow and the Firth of Forth, knockout blows had been given to the fleet which today is carrying on the traditions of Nelson.

If the Germans could be believed, there was hardly a warship of whole bottom left in the British navy to be sent forth to battle. The sheer audacity of Hitler and his military advisers in inviting a clash with Albion's formidable fleet indicates that they almost believed this themselves.

There is every reason to believe Hitler expected a walkover in Norway. He has never moved unless he expected one. He had it ridiculously easy in Czechoslovakia, quickly overwhelmed Poland by sheer force of aerial numbers and took Denmark by lifting his little finger.

Stumbling Block

Norway, however, has proved a formidable stumbling block. In substantiation of the belief that the Fuehrer never anticipated it, consider the plight of Major Vidkun Quisling, pro-Nazi officer of the Norwegian army who was appointed prime minister of Norway the moment Hitler's first soldier set foot on Norwegian soil.

Hitler obviously expected that King Haakon of Norway would accept this rump regime as his legal government representative and join King Victor Emmanuel of Italy in the roster of European puppet monarchs.

But the tall, determined Viking king was of another mind, threw the full weight of his prestige and personality behind continued resistance to Germany and the sudden flush of enthusiasm in Nazi Germany for Quisling's regime has evaporated in the dust of battle.

The test of strength now under way in Scandinavia is a major one. If it goes against him, Hitler doubtless will shift the scene of action elsewhere, probably in the lowlands. But in the meantime he has learned for the first time that Nazi gains cannot always be won without fighting.

CHURCHILL TELLS RESULTS OF WAR AROUND NORWAY

he said, the under-sea fleet having been accorded "full liberty of action".

Churchill said there was no foundation for reports that British troops had recaptured and occupied Bergen and Trondheim on Norway's coast and was reluctant to describe British successes. He did say, however, that Germany's cruiser arm had been crippled and hinted at an eventual smashing blow by the British navy.

Hitler Overreaches Himself

Strategically, economically and politically, Adolf Hitler has overreached himself by extending the war so far north, Churchill said, and compared the fuehrer's error in strategy with Napoleon's invasion of Spain.

"The very recklessness with which Hitler and his advisers cast the interest of the German navy upon wild waters," Churchill said, "makes me feel that these costly and audacious operations may be only a prelude to far larger events which impend on land. . . .

"We have probably arrived now at the first main test of the war, but find no reason in the facts of what has just happened, still less in our own hearts, to deter us from entering any fresh trials which may be before us."

Briefly, Churchill's long and carefully-worded address may be summarized:

Summary Of Address

1—British troops have not landed in Norway, but needed portions of her coast can be seized "whenever we want them".

2—The German navy has suffered badly, with four cruisers sunk, the battleship Scharnhorst hit and a supply base destined to make Narvik, Norway, a new Gibraltar "broken up" by British guns.

(Editor's Note: In Paris, Premier Paul Reynaud announced that 18 German and four British warships had been sunk, the German losses representing one-tenth the total tonnage of the Nazi fleet.)

3—Effectiveness of Britain's blockade has improved immeasurably now that Norway's neutrality is gone.

4—Other neutral nations will now be well advised to ask for British and French aid before they themselves have been made victims of "elaborately planned and scientifically carried out" German invasion.

5—Hitler has gained nothing from his Scandinavian venture and faces ultimate loss of his entire navy. All German ships in the Skagerrak and Kattegat "will be destroyed".

6—The British navy lost two destroyers and the 33,900-ton battleship Rodney was damaged by a German bomb during the Scandinavian operations.

Norway and Denmark merely drew the unlucky numbers in Hitler's "sinister lottery" of aggression, Churchill declared.

WAR WITH CHINA HAS ENDED NIGHT LIFE IN TOKYO

(International News Service)

TOKYO.—Night life in Tokyo, once one of the gayest and fastest in the world, has grown pale and wan since the China Affair started three years ago, and now is being reduced to almost nothing.

Order for "lights out" at 11 p. m. in all amusement centers, went into effect April 1. The government is determined to enforce the new decree, because of the shortage of electricity caused by a drought in Japan this winter.

Closing hours for restaurants and stores will not be 11 p. m. but rather earlier so that all lights inside the stores may be off by that time. The moving picture shows and theaters will have to close about 10 p. m. Taxis are to be forbidden by law to operate after midnight, except in cases of accident or other emergency.

EVEN THE KIDS RAN AWAY

B. F. Haag, 217 E. Penn St., Butler, Pa., says: "Constipation was making a regular grouch out of me. Resulting gas pains, bloating, sour stomach and headaches made me so cross that even the kids would run out of the house. But thanks to World's Tonic and the constipation relief it brought me, those days are over." Back and limb pains, night risings and all-in feeling may result from constipation. Imported roots, barks and herbs are used in World's Tonic because their medicinal content and action differ considerably from those obtainable otherwise. Nelson To Defend His Open Crown At Cleveland, Ohio

All Of Golfing Greats Will Seek To Dethrone Byron Nelson

DEMARET, HOGAN ARE HOT GOLFERS

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 11.—For three torrid days, June 6-8, at the Canterbury Golf club, Warrensville, O., Jimmy Demaret, Ben Hogan and other stars of the winter golf tour will attempt to prove their greatness beyond further rebuttal, the occasion being the national open championship with a crack field of 170. The eventual winner could be some unknown suddenly blazing for the three-day stretch of hot competition, but more likely the name that will go up after the 72-hole grind will be a familiar one in keeping with seldom broken precedent.

Nelson Defending Champion

Heading the list of entrants will be Byron Nelson, who last year at Philadelphia found out just how tough a victory in this event can be. He finished in a three-way deadlock with Denny Shute and Craig Wood after the regulation 72 holes, then in a two-way deadlock after the first extra round, with the result that he finally out-lasted Wood on a second playoff.

And all the aces will be in there shooting at Nelson, the following 31 being automatically eligible by virtue of their finish in last year's event, according to an announcement by the U. S. Golf association today:

Dean-Hartnett Showdown Near

Dizzy Dean Fined $100 For Breaking Rules, Leaves Team In Topeka, Kan.

(International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 11.—A showdown between Dizzy Dean and Manager Gabby Hartnett was believed imminent today as the pitcher and the Chicago Cubs, united briefly after a long holdout, went separate ways again.

When Dean balked and removed his uniform at Topeka yesterday because he was fined $100 for breaking training rules, Hartnett purchased him a railroad ticket and ordered him to proceed directly to Chicago.

Dean, however, exchanged the ticket for one to St. Louis, saying he would later drive to Chicago to see the Cub owner, P. K. Wrigley. Both Hartnett and Dean washed their hands of each other, and Dean issued a series of seemingly contradictory statements.

Technically, Dean was fined for turning in at 12:45 a. m. instead of at the midnight curfew Tuesday night. Actually, Hartnett said it was for repeated violation of training rules. Dean was reported to have boasted publicly that "no one can tell him when to go to bed."

Dean was not formally suspended. After removing his uniform, he returned to the field yesterday and watched the St. Louis Browns beat the Cubs 15-3.

No Changes In A. B. C. Standings

(International News Service)

DETROIT, April 11—The battle to overtake Johnny Crimmins, of Detroit, for leadership of the ten-year men, began to dominate the American bowling congress championships today with the parade of stars due to start this week end.

Carlson is third man in the standings and he is expected to have his work cut out for him by Hank Marino and Frankie Benkovic, Milwaukee aces, also due to appear.

H. and K. Conkling Motor Freight, Toledo, O., overcame a slow start of 854 to rush into a sixth place tie in the five-man standings. William and Carl Subjek of Olean, N. Y., accounted for one of two changes among the minor events leaders with an eight place 1276.

Sports World Ramblings

Local niblets—Harry Hordig, one of Shenango Township High's greatest athletes, has departed for Buckhannon, West Virginia, where he will enroll at West Virginia Wesleyan. He contemplates entering school in September. After completing a star-studded scholastic career, Hordig has been keeping active, athletically, by playing with local independent outfits. . . . . .

In his travels with Uncle Sam's Marines, Johnny Dean, the local beezer buster, molded acquaintances with quite a few personalities who are nationally known in the sports world. Lew Jenkins, the Texas flash and currently one of the hottest numbers in the fistic manana, is an intimate friend. Ditto for Wild Bill Boyd, Jack Dempsey's protege who ruined Harry Bobo's championship aspirations, temporarily, at least. . .

Dean was telling the boys that he, Jenkins and Boyd started just about the same time in the fistic business, following rather successful amateur careers. Today, Jenkins and Boyd are up and among them. Dean, at least, seems to have attached his kite to a winning star. For a while, Dean was Baby Arizmendi's sparring partner. Freddie Apostoli, the ex-bell hop, and the colorful Maxie Slapsie Rosenbloom know the localite. . . .

Mail and phone department: One of the readers called in to report that George A. Metz, North Jefferson street resident, bowled a perfect duckpin score back in December 31, 1938. He has a gold medal to show for it. . . . To phone number 2863-W: The B. & O. field, South Mill street, was abandoned by the Italian A. A. in 1924. Several clubs, however, used the grounds during the next few years. Officially, the Italian ended play on the diamond in '24.

Diamond potpourri — Some of baseball's better known drum beaters are picking the Boston Red Sox to end the Yanks' monopoly of the American league banner. The biggest reason seems to be a cocky, tall lad named Ted Williams. Jimmy Foxx, who is equally as important, is mentioned in an undertoned manner, so is "Lefty" Grove. Granted that Williams is streamlined, there are too many "ifs" involved. The Red Sox will hit with the best of them in any league, true, but that pitching staff! That's the big hitch.

Grove can't possibly do it all alone. In baseball jargon, the rest of the staff could be classified as a lot of nonentities. The boys picking the Red Sox do it merely on a hunch, or better yet, the law of averages. Comparing the teams man for man, or any other way you care to, the result spells but one thing—New York Yankees in any land or language. After Williams, Foxx and "Lefty" Grove, where do you go after that?

Ted Williams, who received 107 bases on balls last year, is expected to get a bigger number of free tickets. Pitchers probably plan walking Ted to take a chance on Jimmy Foxx. . . . Foxx found the St. Louis park much to his liking. Double X slashed out eight homers in that orchard in '39. . . . Sure bet: The Browns, who haven't won a pennant, won't cop the bauble this season. . . . Ditto for the Phillies and Athletics.

Louis Thinks Conn Suitable Opponent For Title Chance

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, April 11—Joe Louis, heavyweight champion of the world, today remained of the opinion that Billy Conn, light heavyweight king, would be a suitable opponent.

In town to referee a local Y. M. C. A. bout, Louis said he had no intention of retiring, and in reply to a recent statement by Jack Dempsey that fighting so often is cheapening the crown, Louis insisted that he was only doing what Dempsey had promised to do—but didn't, according to Louis.

At the moment, he added, he is looking forward to bouts in June and September, but said he could not name his probable opponents. In regards to the outcome of a possible Louis-Conn battle, the heavyweight champion declared he had "no fear of the outcome."

GANDHI TOPS CHAMBERLAIN

(International News Service)

LONDON. — If Gracie Fields (movie star), Premier Neville Chamberlain, George Bernard Shaw and Mahatma Gandhi were marooned on a desert island and only one could be rescued by an airplane, whom would you save? This problem was debated by a literary society at Northwood, Middlesex, recently. The vote was in favor of Gandhi with Premier Chamberlain a close second, and Gracie Fields third. George Bernard Shaw received only one vote.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Back in the 90's, Rube Waddell was pitching in Butler County, likewise W. H. Hodgkinson, now of this city, and of seven games, Hodgkinson won five from the man who later was to go down in baseball history as not only baseball's most eccentric player but one of its greatest pitchers. In their first game, Hodgkinson warned Rube that "if you hit me with one of your pitches I'll throw every pitch at your head." Rube didn't throw a pitch at the head of Hodgkinson or any of his teammates. Instead, he kept the ball on the outside of the plate. Hodgkinson reported one of his wins over Rube was at Conneaut Lake. It was in the season of the year when the small apples were on trees. After losing 1-0, Rube threw the ball straight up at the small apples, Hodgkinson reports. According to the local expitcher, the boys in small towns have just as much stuff as the major leaguers. However, they don't know how to use it and Hodgkinson believes that the majors should send hurlers to instruct the youngsters how to use their talent.

Johnny Regal who carries the cognomen "The Butler Kid," will not fight here April 22 for the reason that he has not guarded his weight and it would be a physical impossibility for him to weigh in at 160 pounds for his fight with Johnny Chingonish of Youngstown. At present, Regal weighs 182 and indications are that, should he desire to remain in the amateur boxing game he will be required to fight as a light-heavyweight. However, his absence will not detract from the fistic menu prepared by the Jefferson club, because in the ring there will cavort such well known amateur celebrities as Sparkey Jarisik, Sun-Tele champion vs. George Saunders, Golden Glove champion of Youngstown at 175 pounds; Billy Murray, Cecil flash, vs. Johnny Swanton, former Golden Glove champion of Youngstown at 135; Sonny Horne, Youngstown's most promising amateur vs. Cameron Stewart of that city at 147 and Frankie Moran, local featherweight against some good opponent. Meanwhile Johnny Dean, the ex-marine is putting himself in good shape for his six round test with Jimmie Bivin in the public auditorium, Cleveland, Monday night. A number of fans will follow Dean.

Smokey Robinson is going good in the national A. A. U. mitt tourney in Boston. . . . Teddy Yarosz, ex-middleweight champion is training in the gym of Bryan Downey in Cleveland. Downey reportedly knocked out Johnny Wilson years ago in Cleveland but wasn't awarded the win. He formerly was trained by Jimmie Dunn and at one time boxed Joe Chip in the Carnegie auditorium here. . . . Jim Londos pinned Joe Dusek in 25 minutes at Youngstown. Walter Podolak won from Jimmy Christos when Jimmy leaped from the ring and forgot to return. . . Carmen Barth, former Olympic middleweight king, will fight under the banner of Gus Wilson in Australia. . . . Ray Arcel, New York, is the ring's highest-priced trainer, reports state.

Frankie Moran of this city and Billy Murray, Cecil, will punch each other again at Rochester, Monday night. They met several times.

Because Manager Gabby Hartnett fined him $100 for late hours Dizzy Dean has declared he will pitch for a Chicago barnstorming team. It appears Dizzy, enroute to Topeka, stopped off to visit an uncle and did not return to his hotel until a late hour, hence the fine.

Lawrence Loop Meets Friday

Last Opportunity For Teams To Sign With League This Year

HOPE TO BOOK TEAM FROM CITY

Last opportunity for baseball teams to enter the Lawrence County Baseball league for the 1940 season will be Friday night in the Sport Goods store when officials and the managers of teams already having enrolled convene. Officials of the loop would like to have at least one city team in the circuit.

At present the circuit is composed of Bessemer, 1939 flag winner, two teams from Wampum, Brent, Ellwood City and the New Castle Hot Tops, the latter club also being representative of New Galilee.

According to Secretary James Martin, he expects that when Friday night arrives Manager Riley and Captain Grist of Hillsville will be present and take out a franchise for Hillsville. Hillsville was a hard club to beat in 1939.

John Gaffney will again lead the Wampum Medusa club. Gaffney led the team to a runner-up for the title in 1938 but was out of the game last season when the club also won second place. The Winter brothers, Kosier and Powell have been signed by the Medusa, reports state.

New Castle Hot Tops finished second in the first half of the 1939 race, but slipped to fourth place in the second half. Manager Bauman is strengthening the circuit and has high hopes of winning the flag or being second in the coming race.

Ellwood City lost out for the pennant in the second half of the race last season, but Manager George Patterson believes things may be different this season because he has a mountain of good pitching in Jim McCready, George Komora and Beatrice.

Brent will return to the league following an absence of many years. Brent always has been a hard club to defeat. Tony Lucas and Steinbrink will have charge of the team. Last year Brent won the independent championship.

Wampum White Sox is another newcomer to the circuit, and Manager Ralph Ferucci expects his team to give a good account of itself every time the team takes the field.

Bessemer having captured the flag so often believes that another flag for the limestone town is only another summer distant. Snyder, Nord and Hardesty will pitch again, according to Manager Webb Stanley. Valentine, Tropea and "Steamer" Stanley will be in the lineup.

FROM ME TO YOU
By MESEEALL

Yes sir folks . . . today is her birthday, at least she is celebrating two months of eating and sleeping . . . had a long talk with the little queen last night and from the tone of her voice she is beginning to feel at home with the dog and the rest of the connection. However her favorite person at present is the "boss" of the household. All eyes turn thata way when the stomach starts teasing for something to eat . . . but we'll feel kinda proud that we live in the same house and maybe some day she will look at her pap and get a good laugh.

It's time to really dig into spring housecleaning . . . many a tired and wornout husband will return to his fireside tonight to find that instead of sitting for a nice little rest there will be some carpet beating to do or "that chair you promised to paint last winter must be done right now . . . and no back talk either, want to get this cleaning done this week and the way you move around you think I had all summer, my how you ever keep a job moving at that pace is more than I can understand!" . . . and so on far into the night. No, Mr. Live Alone, it's not quite that bad . . . life is fun and you only get out of it what you put in.

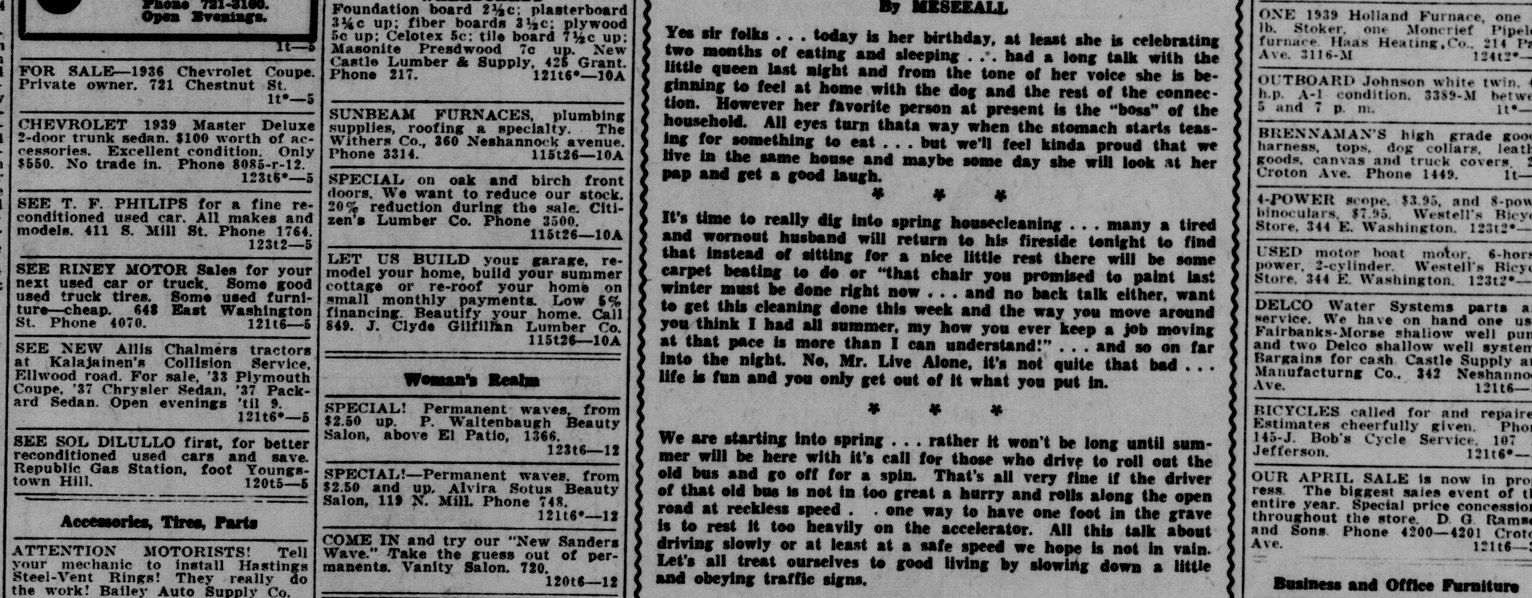

* * *

We are starting into spring . . . rather it won't be long until summer will be here with it's call for those who drive to roll out the old bus and go off for a spin. That's all very fine if the driver of that old bus is not in too great a hurry and rolls along the open road at reckless speed . . . one way to have one foot in the grave is to rest it too heavily on the accelerator. All this talk about driving slowly or at least at a safe speed we hope is not in vain. Let's all treat ourselves to good living by slowing down a little and obeying traffic signs.

"If life be short, let's make it as lovely as a rose!
If cares there be to shake it,
And grief there be to break it with multitude of blows
If ever joy forsake it, and only sorrows wake it,
Let fragrance crown its woes!
If life be short, let's make it as lovely as a rose!"

Gains Are Made In Stock Market

By LESLIE GOULD
(International News Service Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, April 11.—The stock market rallied today as gains ran to more than a point in several leaders.

Steels, aircraft issues and coppers led the rise. Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Douglas, Lockheed and American Air Lines each chalked up extreme gains of a point or more. American Smelting was up about as much to a new high for the year.

R. M. Macy climbed better than a point and General Foods hit a new 1940 top. U. S. Rubber gained a point.

Lesser gains were shown by General Motors, Chrysler, Anaconda, Kennecott, United Aircraft, General Electric, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Consolidated Edison and North American. Paper shares ruled a shade higher, but quited down after their spectacular advance to new highs in the last few sessions.

Chemicals were among the few backward issues, including du Pont and Union Carbide.

France Turning Out New Tanks Enmasse

By KENNETH DOWNS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE.—French tanks are rolling off highly-geared assembly lines at the rate of several hundred per month now, it was revealed here today near one of the giant armament factories which go day and night.

Lean, saturine Raoul Dautry, the hard-working, hard-driving Minister of Armaments conducted a group of generals and members of the Chamber and Senate army commissions through the factories and then out to a test field to view an astonishing sight.

On the field was a sea of tanks. Their leather-and-steel helmeted drivers standing beside them, their motors idling, the tanks were lined ten abreast for fifty rows. M. Dautry explained that these 500 machines were the fruit of six weeks production by this particular group of factories.

This represents about an eighth-fold increase in the production rate since the start of the war.

Several Types Of Tanks

There are several types of tanks shown in this group, ranging from the tiny "chenillettes," fast, armored, caterpillar machines for hauling munitions and supplies to frontline position under fire, to the well-known 10-ton "assault tank" with its 37 millimeter canon and machine guns, to a monstrous new tank whose weight and armament and other characteristics we were requested not to mention.

It can be said, however, that the new monsters were extremely impressive as they tore across the rough terrain. They tend to uphold the French reputation for superior tanks.

The factories are organized along lines of utmost efficiency. Shift follows shift with never a letup in the roar of the forges and presses during day or night, week day or Sunday. Assembly lines like those of great automobile factories function swiftly and expertly. Many of the workers were skilled employes of automobile factories before the war.

There were a surprising number of women in the factories It was a little startling to see a woman in overalls and huge gloves in the control cabin of a gigantic crane moving down the tracks high over our heads. We could never quite get accustomed to the sight of girls and middle-aged housewife types in goggles and jumpers throughout the huggermugger of steel and fire and noise. But that is all a part of the picture of war today.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.
